CLARK COUNTY'S COMMITMENT TO EQUAL OPPORTUNITY

Clark County is an equal opportunity employer and is committed to providing equal opportunity in employment and in access to the provision of all County services. This commitment applies regardless of race, color, religion, creed, sex, marital status, national origin, disability, age, veteran status, on-the-job injury, or sexual orientation. Employment decisions are made without consideration of these or any other factors that employers are prohibited by law from considering.

As a recipient agency of U.S. Department of Justice grant funds, the County is required to maintain an Equal Employment Opportunity Plan (EEOP). The County's EEOP was submitted to Department of Justice most recently in April 2004. At the DOJ's request, the County's current EEOP is now provided. The Plan's effective dates are April 1, 2006, to April 1, 2008.

The purpose of the County's EEOP is to ensure full and equal participation of all qualified individuals in the County's workforce regardless of race or national origin. The County's commitment to that full participation is fundamental to its daily operations and public service activities. The EEOP demonstrates the County's commitment to action-oriented steps to ensure equal opportunity.

Bill Barron
County Administrator

INTRODUCTION

Clark County is briefly described in this introduction. In the following sections the Equal Employment Opportunity Plan (EEOP) and its implementation are described.

The first and oldest county in the state of Washington, Clark County dates its start from June 27, 1844, when the Provisional Government of the Oregon Territory set aside the area north of the Columbia River as the Vancouver District. The County was later named for explorer William Clark. While camped near Vancouver Lake on March 30, 1806, explorer Meriwether Lewis wrote that the area was the best place for a settlement west of the Rocky Mountains.

The County is governed by the three-member Board of Clark County Commissioners. They are elected by the voters to a four-year term, as are the assessor, auditor, clerk, prosecuting attorney, sheriff, and treasurer. These elected officials provide government services to the third most-densely-populated county in the state.

Location

Located in southwestern Washington State, Clark County is approximately 70 miles from the Pacific Ocean. It is physically compact, measuring approximately 25 miles across in either direction, encompassing 656 square miles. The Columbia River forms the western and southern boundaries of the County, with more than 40 miles of river frontage. Clark County is bordered to the south by Oregon, and is 10 miles from downtown Portland, Oregon, a metropolitan area of 1.5 million.

Demographics

The Economy

According to the US Census, estimated People Quick Facts for Clark County, include:

Total 2004 Estimated Population	392,403
Population, 2000	345,238
% Change in Population (1990-2000)	45.0
% Population under 18 years old	28.7
% Population 65 years and older	9.5
% White Population	88.8
% Black Population	1.7
% American Indian, Alaska Native
Population	0.8
% Asian or Pacific Islander Population	a 3.6
% Hispanic Population	4.7
% Bachelor's degree or higher, 25 yea	rs
& older, 2000	22.1

Clark County's diverse economy is integrally linked with the Portland, Oregon, metropolitan area. Transportation facilities, serving both sides of the river, have created regional hub for commerce. Transcontinental rail lines serving the County traverse major north-south and east-west routes. Interstate 5 and 205 provide access to the vital economic centers of Seattle, Washington, San Francisco, California, and points beyond. The Portland International Airport, just fifteen minutes south of Vancouver, is an essential community and economic development asset.

Homeownership rate (2000)	67.3
Households (2000)	127,208
Median Household Income (1999)	$48,376

Source: Washington State Employment Security Department. Unemployment rates have continued to decrease over the recent past. The preliminary rate for Clark County for February 2006 is 6.2%, compared with 7.4% for February 2005. The County's rate of 6.2% is slightly above the Washington State Rate of 5.6%.

Clark County is experiencing an increasing demand for services, characteristic of the residential nature of a bedroom community, thereby currently creating a challenging situation for Clark County leadership. A rise in industrial and commercial development is needed to generate the increases in public revenues that are required to satisfy growing service demands.

Section IV

UTILIZATION ANALYSIS

A. Assignment of Job Categories

For purposes of workforce and utilization analyses of this Plan, each job in the County is placed in one of seven functional job categories defined by the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission. The categories used in this Plan are as follows:

Includes: Department heads, and first line administrators under elected officials and in reporting departments.

Occupations which require a combination of basic and scientific or technical knowledge and manual skill which can be obtained through specialized post-secondary school education or through equivalent on-the-job training. Includes: Computer programmers, drafters, survey and mapping technicians, licensed practical nurses, investigators, radio operators, technical illustrators, highway technicians, technicians, (electronic, physical sciences), sergeants, inspectors, and kindred workers.

Includes sworn occupations only. Workers are entrusted with public safety, security and protection from destructive forces. Includes: Patrol officers, deputy sheriffs, and kindred workers.

^{} Please note: In its publication, "Creating an EEOP: The Seven-Step Guide and Forms," the US Dept of Justice defines the Protective Service category to include sworn officials and sworn patrol officers only. Consistent with Department of Justice guidelines, non-sworn occupations are assigned to one of the remaining six categories.

B. Data Analysis

Appendix A contains the following four charts to summarize the County's workforce, community labor statistics and utilization:

- Chart 1. Workforce Analysis (Total Agency)
- Chart 2. Workforce Analysis (Protective Services: Sworn Officials and Patrol Officers)
- Chart 3. Community Labor Statistics
- Chart 4. Utilization Analysis

As noted in Charts 3 and 4, the 2000 Census data for the Portland-Vancouver, OR-WA PMSA are used for all job categories except for the Office/Clerical, Skilled Craft, and Service Maintenance categories for which the 2000 Census data for Clark County is used. Recruiting, advertising, applicant flow, and selection patterns demonstrate that the Clark County area is the appropriate labor market for these three job groups.

Careful review of Chart 4's utilization figures is critical to understanding Clark County's workforce composition. In 24 of the noted instances of "underutilization" (denoted by the tan highlighting), the assessment of "underutilization" would be entirely reversed if the County hired one individual in the protected class. For example, the hiring of an American Indian or Alaskan Native in the Professional category would result in a representation rate of 0.6% and parity with the labor market percentage rather than the "underutilization" finding of -0.1% which now exists.

There are additional instances (denoted by blue highlighting) for which the assessment of "underutilization" would be reversed if the County added two or three individuals into the job category.

The County does not dismiss the importance of making progress in improving representation rates through numerically – small hires, promotions, or reassignments. But we believe our attention must be focused on those job categories with significant underutilization rates (denoted by data in bold typeface with yellow highlighting). Specifically, we identify considerable underrepresentation in the following categories:

Male	Female
Professionals: Asian/Pacific Is. (A/PI)	Officials/Administrators: White (W)
Technicians: Asian/Pacific Is. (A/PI)	Technicians: White, Black, and A/PI
Sworn Patrol Officers: Hispanic (H)	Sworn Patrol Officers: White (W)
Office Clerical: White, Black, and A/PI
Skilled Craft: Hispanic
Service/Maint.: Hispanic

C. Objective

It is the County's objective to increase the representation in each of the groups noted above with significant underutilization.

D. Specific Goals and Steps to Remedy Underutilization

Goal: Increase the number of women and minorities applying for jobs in the targeted category areas.

Specific Steps:

- 1. Target job fairs that emphasize diversity and send female and minority staff members to speak and recruit at local community colleges, technical schools, universities, career expos, job fairs, etc. In addition to using HR recruiters for outreach, train and send department representatives who can speak from personal experience.
- 2. Increase County appearances at diverse community-based events and club or organizational meetings in order to increase recognition of the County as an employer of choice.
- 3. Continue to advertise job openings in newspapers and journals which target specific diverse populations. Continue to provide copies of job openings to effective outreach organizations. (See Exhibit A for outreach groups receiving all County job postings.) Ensure that all recruiters and recruiting materials articulate the County's commitment to workplace diversity and/or equal opportunity employment.
- 4. Continue links with Washington State WorkSource and other organizations that provide retraining for displaced workers. Use the links to attract qualified women into our under-represented occupations.
- 5. Incorporate one or more diversity-related questions in supplemental questionnaires or interviews for manager positions.
- 6. Confer with County women and minorities or others who regularly work with women and minorities in the community to assist in finding effective methods to attract diverse applicants.

Goal: Ensure that managers and supervisors support a diverse workforce, and consider this while making hiring decisions, especially in targeted categories/occupations.

Specific Steps:

- 7. Conduct training sessions with County managers, supervisors, and staff involved in the hiring/promotion process. Share the utilization analysis developed for this report.
- 8. Include one or more diversity-related questions in selection interviews for supervisory and managerial positions.
- 9. HR review of staffing plans and results of interview panels and hiring decisions.

Goal: Conduct reviews of applicant pools and staffing decisions to identify opportunities for improving County practices in support of diversity.

Specific Steps:

- 10. Work with the County's HRIS technical staff to develop reports that will inform management of the County's and specific department's EEO representation.
- 11. Periodically review HRIS data regarding applicant pools and selection rates in relation to gender and ethnicity.

Section V

ACTION-ORIENTED PROGRAMS

The purpose of the Equal Opportunity Employment program is to ensure equal employment opportunities to all Clark County employees and qualified applicants. The following programs will help the County successfully undertake this program.

A. Recruitment and Advertisement

In our efforts to recruit qualified minorities and women, we strive to communicate with these groups in various ways, including annual written affirmation of the County's commitment to EEO; sending County postings to these organizations on a regular basis; and encouraging them to refer qualified minorities and women for open positions. In 2006 we will increase these efforts. The County will continue to be represented at career fairs at local colleges and universities as budget permits. The phrase "Equal Opportunity Employer" is on all of our advertisements and job postings. Exhibit A is the outreach distribution list of diverse organizations to which the County sends notice of all external job openings.

B. Employment Procedures

All job postings include public notice that the County is an Equal Opportunity Employer. To underscore this commitment when applicants are known to be female or minority, HR staff works with hiring managers to ensure consideration of qualified female and minority applicants in underrepresented categories.

C. Employment and Selection

When a job is posted for a group or a department, the Human Resources staff will be responsible for reviewing applications and working with the hiring authority to ensure appropriate consideration is given to all qualified candidates.

Human Resources staff will work with departments in defining job requirements. This practice helps ensure that job requirements are valid for the position being filled. Inflated requirements may rule out under-represented candidates who are in fact capable of doing the work.

It is the responsibility of the Human Resources staff to review all applications and/or the application(s) of the finalist(s) for minimum requirements in conformance with State and Federal employment standards.

Interview panels are utilized so that the possibility of individual biases is reduced.

D. Discrimination Complaints

Procedures (both formal and informal) have been developed to resolve those situations where an applicant or employee from a protected class believes that her/his rights have been violated.

Applicants and employees may file such a complaint with the Human Resources Department. All complaints will be investigated. It will be the responsibility of the Human Resources Department to involve other appropriate staff in the investigation of a complaint. Wherever possible, attempts will be made to resolve the complaint through mediation. Applicants and employees have the right to file discrimination complaints related to employment practices or procedures with federal, state, or local compliance agencies.

All employees, including elected officials, are expressly prohibited from retaliating against or harassing an employee who has filed a discrimination complaint.
